Introduction to Psychology and Abnormal Psychology are two courses offered to students using the Angel Learning Management System. With comprehensive textbooks and psychology research studies presented in the news media daily, Angel lends itself to communicating with the students in a friendly and responsive manner encouraging student curiosity and critical thinking. The discussion board allows for direct links to the “news-of-the-day” with students substantiating their comments, questions, predictions, and definitive statements using web research and documentation. Grade books encourage students to follow their progress, and monitor their performance in relation to classmates. Research teams can be established and all information submitted via the drop-box (for grading) and posted on the discussion board for further reflection.
