Abstract:

With so many learning activities taking place in the Cloud, organizations need to decide whether their online assessments belong in the Cloud, too. Is it best to install an assessment management system and run it on-premises or to use a remote, on-demand service? Would you rather have participants connect to your own server and keep your assessments fully under local control? Or should you turn to an external provider and delegate to them the hosting and running of the service? This session will explore the advantages and disadvantages of on-premise vs. on-demand assessment administration, considering such factors as speed of deployment, reliability, uptime, scalability, data protection, integration, customization, connectivity and cost. It will include advice about what questions to ask when considering either on-premise or on-demand solutions.
