Writing in the 1:1 computer classroom is more than just writing in a Word document. Students in a effectively designed and implemented 1:1 English class have the opportunity to explore each part of the writing process – planning, drafting, revising, editing, and publication -- in a digital format using a variety of free or inexpensive web tools which allows for more immediate feedback as well as a more authentic critical audience. Utilizing both small, large group, and digital collaboration, teacher input during the writing process, and feedback on published pieces, students develop a critical eye towards their own writing. This digital writing process also allows for a shift in writing assessment from a quantitative focus to one of a qualitative emphasis, providing narrative feedback on the content and mechanics without assigning a numeric or letter grade. During this session, an effective digital writing program and philosophy will be discussed, along with useful tools and resources.
